Smith and Others Fail With Combine Against McAdoo

Breaking Records of Ballots of Back in '60

By Stephen Bolles

Midnight in New York. One thousand and ninety-eight men and women were sitting in the glare of the hideously decorated arena in a historical old convention hall which is leased to Tex Rickard mostly for prize fights. Remember the date, July 3 and 4, 1924.

The chairman of the convention, a tall man, straight, immobile-faced, immaculately dressed in white flannel trousers and blue coat, hammering with the gavel three times.

"The secretary will call the roll for the 60th ballot."

And then, "Alabama, 21 votes," said the secretary in a voice hoarse from frequent calls and dreary monotony.

The world's record for balloting in a national convention of either party was broken. Everybody, and most everybody had been reading the newspapers, said, "That beats the 1860 record."

It did. But the 1860 record was somewhat different. There were two conventions then; one at Charleston, where no nomination was made, where half the delegates withdrew from the convention, where there was a deadlock on voting and an adjournment to another city when there were two ballots taken as a continuation of the original balloting, and finally on the 53rd presidential candidate, Stephen A. Douglas, was nominated.

For thrills, fights over platform, personal animosity, ceremony, whiskey-drinking, rows with the chairman, bitterness and all the other frills including local clamor which caused the delegates eventually to change the place of meeting, the democratic convention in April, 1860, was the only rival of the one held in New York city.

The old files of the Gazette of April, 1860, tell a graphic story of the Charleston convention. The south and the north met on the partition ground of the building and had been talking of disunion and of secession.

N. W. Freight Train Piles up at Cary

Elgin, Ill.—Twenty-six cars on Chicago and Northwestern freight number 576, from points in Wisconsin to Chicago, were derailed and piled four high in a $60,000 smash-up at Cary station, near Crystal Lake, early this morning.

A defective truck on one of the cars caused the wreck. No one was injured.

As a result, the main line of the Northwestern between Chicago and St. Paul will be tied up for about 18 hours. Through trains are making the trip to Crystal Lake via the Elgin division.

NO THIRD PARTY TO BE ORGANIZED FOR HIS SUPPORT

WISCONSIN SENATOR TO PLAY LONE HAND IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE: USE OLD PLATFORM Will Fight Both Republicans and Democrats—Bob to Select Mate.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Cleveland.—Having agreed that there would not be a third party, and that the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette on the platform submitted to the republican national convention here in June, and with a few details washed out, the conference for Progressive Political Action adjourned at 12:30 until 2 o'clock, when the nomination of Senator La Follette will be formally made. He already has accepted. (The text of his letter of acceptance is printed in the Gazette today.)

The third party resolutions were buried in committee and there was agreement that no fight would be made on the floor. William Maclure, head of the St. Paul movement and conference, was denied a seat in the conference.

No candidate for vice president will be named until after the close of the democratic convention and the selection was left up to La Follette and a committee.

Rabbi A. H. Silver of Cleveland invoked divine blessing on the proceedings, praying for international peace and national material prosperity and spiritual hardihood.

Action on the endorsement of Senator La Follette as vice presidential candidate, was made a special order of business for 4 p. m. by the report of T. C. Cullen, chairman of the rules committee.

Senator La Follette of North Dakota assured the convention that

No word against the Wisconsin leader has been heard from any of the delegates since his message to the convention yesterday in which he agreed to lead the progressive elements gathered here and the resolutions committee of the convention.

"In the most momentous crisis which has confronted the nation in our time, you have called upon me to accept the leadership in a national political campaign to wrest the story interests which now control it and to restore it to the people."

"I realize this summons comes to me in no sense as a mere personal tribute. The American people are thoroughly, again to the real issue

CONFERENCE AT CLEVELAND

Army Worms Eat up Field of Rye in Turtle Township; March Onward

Army worms continue to stage a rapid advance into Rock, Green, Jefferson and Grant counties.

In some sections whole grain fields are being eaten up by the army worms steadily dash for food. The damage in Wisconsin as yet is slight as compared to that in northern Illinois but farmers are warned to exercise care and utilize neighborhood cooperation to stop the invasion or suffer great losses.

A week ago Bert Schinner, Turtle township farmer, had one of the best rye fields in southern Wisconsin. It stood about 40 bushels per acre, and 40 bushels to the acre. Worms invaded the fine field Friday and now if the crop yields 20 bushels the farmer's township farmers will be lucky.

"Little in Army"

In Wisconsin the worms are especially bad in Timothy and rye fields. Early in the evening they crawl to the top of the plant and begin eating the heads.

The name army worm is derived from the characteristic of these worms to unite in an army and advance on fields of grain or other crops. The protection against them is an "army trench," a deep furrow with the soil turned forward the worms with long holes and post holes. Poison paste, fire and rotters are the methods employed to combat the invading pests. Fields infested with worms should be harvested at once.

"Time at Night"

"I have received scores of inquiries as to how to check the damage done by insects and worms, among these are letters from farmers in Grant, Green, and Rock counties asking how to stop the ravages of the army worms," says H. P. Wilson, entomology department, Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Where the worms have already appeared in the fields, Wilson urges the use of poison bait as a control measure which will kill or ten pounds measure.

ROCKFORD MAN IS DROWNED IN RIVER AT INDIAN FORD

A swift back current on the lower side of Indian Ford dam on Rock river, is believed to have caused the capsizing of a row boat Thursday afternoon, causing the death by drowning of Joseph H. Peterson, 39, of 1219 Crosby street, Rockford, president of the Central Dairy corporation, and the narrow escape of two other occupants of the boat.

The two men who were saved are William H. Thompson, 35, of 1917 Second avenue, and John E. Sandell, 38, of 811 North Longwood street, both of Rockford. Peterson was the son-in-law of Sandell and brother-in-law of Thompson.

The body of Peterson was not recovered until Friday morning, after hours of searching with grapple and hook.

Never Quit Is Order by McAdoo

(By Associated Press.)

Copyright, 1924, by the Janesville Gazette.—Special Correspondence.

Madison Square Garden, New York.—William Gibbs McAdoo sent word to the delegates at the democratic national convention July 4 through his floor managers that he would never withdraw his name from the presidential contest.

The victory of the anti-McAdoo means that the McAdoo forces will be able to retain at least 250 votes a block against someone else's nomination. So long as the McAdoo men persist in this stand, there are two of their favorite son delegations which will not swing to any other candidate. A deadlock for several days more is the only prospect.

Leaders in Fear

Disinterested leaders are aware of the danger to party harmony which the friction here is developing. But the damage seems to have been done already. It grew largely out of the raising of the religious issue and Ku Klux Klanism. The prohibition fight which it was thought would take the center of the stage was superseded by the Klan question, perhaps designedly. In the last 24 hours however leading days have projected the war and dry issue, and the anti-McAdoo forces are now in a position to win.

Klan and McAdoo

The feeling over the support given McAdoo from certain Klan states is such that if he were nominated he would be obliged to denounce the Klan in stronger language than the minority report on platform which was defeated, in order to hold the Catholic vote in the democratic party. Indeed, the recent vote on the religious issue has shown signs of approximating the anti-McAdoo of nations vote which was a veritable revolution in the democratic party in 1920.

Crash in City

In an accident which the city limits the motor car of Norton Carter was badly damaged when crashed into a car driven by a Chicago motorist. The latter, who was speeding through town, struck the Norton Carter car on North Wisconsin street at an intersection, smashing the windows, breaking the axle and one wheel.

A son of August Schmechel, heart failure, was thrown through the windshield of the latter's car and badly cut, in an accident at the Robert Lannon farm four miles east of Elkhorn on the Springville road. The Schmechel crashed into the Lannon car, which had stopped to cross the farm yard on the opposite side of the road, and prevented from doing so at that moment by three cars going in the opposite direction.

CARS IN CRASH, LIVES IN PERIL, MANY ARE INJURED

Elkhorn.—Five persons were injured, two fatally, in one of the worst automobile accidents that marred the fourth of July, when two automobiles collided at the junction of county trunk G and highway 29 at Springville, shortly after noon Friday.

The seriously injured are: John Judson, 71, Elkhorn, Ill.; fractured skull and fractured right arm; and his wife, 57, injured in head, arm and leg. James Hickey, 42, Chicago and his companion, Alfred Knudsen, and Miss Edna Tibbits, wife of John Judson, all have are in the Burlington Memorial hospital.

Carl Judson, driver of the other car, and his wife escaped injury. The motor car of Knudsen was damaged. The Hickey car smashed into the side of the Judson car at the intersection of the two highways, in the sixth collision there of the season.

When taken to Burlington it was ascertained that the injuries of both Mr. and Mrs. Judson were serious. The man has not regained consciousness, having a very bad fracture of the base of the skull. His wife, while conscious, is suffering greatly with internal injuries, the exact nature of which cannot be learned because of her condition. The situation in both cases is aggravated by their advanced age.

The Judson car was wrecked.

SKELETON OF LOST YOUTH IS FOUND

(By Associated Press.)

Superior.—A human skull, with other bones, found in a cow pasture of the Albert Peterson farm at Wentworth, Wis., Friday, brought to light the disappearance of George Sylvester Jenkins, a missing for almost two years from his home one half mile from the place where the bones were found. The remains were found by Alvin Peterson, while herding cattle.

Jenkins, according to his mother, left the farm one day in July of 1922 without stating where he was going. He had not been seen or heard of since.

The mother of the lost youth recognized the bones and coat as that of her son. What appeared to be the butt of a rifle or shotgun was found several feet from the spot. Besides his mother, he is survived by two sisters and three brothers.

It is believed there will be no investigation into the death.

3 Dead, 5 Missing as Vessel Burns

(By Associated Press.)

Baltimore.—Three dead, five boys missing and at least 12 persons injured, some seriously, was the toll brought here today by the survivors of the sidewheel steamer Three Rivers, of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway company, with 100 passengers aboard, which burned to the water's edge early today in the Chesapeake bay near Cove Point.

This fatal may be swelled when more accurate reports are received. The five boys are believed to have drowned. They were members of the Baltimore Evening Sun Newsboys' band, which had gone to Crystalfield, Md., to play at the regatta there yesterday. The three dead were negro deck hands of the boat.

Coolidge, Jr., Is Seriously Ill

(By Associated Press.)

Washington.—Anxiously watching for a sign of improvement in the condition of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., son of the president, in his last regatta, acute mental poisoning, the White House reluctantly announced at noon today there had been no improvement during the night and morning, and the case continued "very serious."

BULLETIN.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington.—The condition of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., son of the president, who is seriously ill with septic poisoning, remained serious today, although it was said he had held his own during the night.

The 16 year old boy is making a strong battle against the infection, which has spread throughout his system as a result of a blister on the foot sustained in playing tennis.

Doctors in Council.

Another conference of physicians was held early today and afterwards it was said the patient was still very ill. Following its usual course the poison in its spread has caused high fever and intense pain. Those in consultation were Major Coupal and Lieut. Commander Boone, the White House physicians; Dr. C. W. Richardson, Washington specialist; Walter Reed hospital; Col. Keller is an expert in poison cases.

Consultations were held by the White House physicians and Doctors C. W. Richardson and William H. Keeler early this morning. All of the physicians gathered at the White House shortly before 8 o'clock.

The consultation continued for about 20 minutes. After which Dr. Richardson said he was satisfied. The White House physicians, Major Coupal and Lieut. Commander Boone remained in attendance on the sick room.

Treatment is centered on localizing the disease after which it may be possible to draw the poison from the body. Meanwhile much depends upon the vitality of the patient.

His name is Anne Solomon.

After the consultation the physicians maintained their silence but appeared solemn as they left the White House.

The president was at his office as usual early today, but left for a while in the middle of the morning to take a walk about the grounds. He was accompanied by House groups. He conferred with Secretary William C. Clegg and made one other appointment. All engagements for the day, however, were subject to cancellation.

FATHER AND SON HELD AS AUTHORS OF THREAT NOTE

(By Associated Press.)

Rockford.—Corcoran Peck, 49, and his son, Clarence, 24, suspected of being authors of a letter demanding $50,000 from United States Senator Modell McCormick, are held in the Winnebago county jail.

The Peck farm hands employed in the vicinity of Senator McCormick's estate near Byron, were arrested by federal agents and taken to Chicago to stand trial before Sheriff Ross T. Atkins of Rockford.

State's Attorney Johnston, while declining to divulge the text of the letter received by the McCormicks, decried the Peck family and said it was a "damned shame" to have references to kidnapping the McCormicks son, John. The letter was clumsily printed and contained misspelled words. Portions of it the state's attorney said, were as follows:

"Mr. and Mrs. McCormick: We demand $50,000 to be left in the culvert. Place it on July 3. Leave it on the culvert. If you do not, you will live happy the rest of your life. If not, you can look out for yourself. We have got to have it some way or we will kill you."

State's Attorney Johnston said a tablet of writing paper found in the older Peck's room appeared to be the same as the paper on which the letter was written.

RECOVER ONE OF TWO CARS STOLEN HERE

Theft of two 1923 Ford touring cars in Janesville, within an hour of the morning, was reported by the police. The cars stolen belonged to Olin Eggen, 2331 Harrison avenue, Beloit, and W. J. Cariberg, Janesville.

The Beloit car was taken from its parking place at First and North bluff streets, and the Cariberg car from East Milwaukee street. Police notified authorities of every nearby city to be on the watch for the machines.

Later in the day the Cariberg car was found abandoned at the spot where the Beloit car was stolen.

Theft of a Chevrolet sedan owned by the R. M. Motor Sales company at Waverly Beach, Beloit, Friday was also reported by the police.

FUTURE EFFORTS TO GET TOGETHER END ANOTHER DAY

CONVENTION QUITS UNTIL MONDAY AFTER 76 BALLOTS ARE TAKEN. NO PEACE SEEN Try to Adjourn to Kansas City But This Is Also Blocked.

BULLETIN.

New York.—The balloting proceeded through the afternoon it became apparent that chance of a nomination or any compromise agreement between the leaders today virtually had disappeared. The convention adjourned over Sunday without a night session, and hope of an agreement planned for conferences to take place tomorrow.

BULLETIN.

Madison Square Garden, New York.—A plan to call representatives of all the presidential candidates into conference in the hope of reaching a compromise was brought out of a consultation of party chiefs today and laid before the democratic national convention.

(By Associated Press.)

Madison Square Garden, New York.—Having lifted their candidate to a new high floor, failing to bring him within striking distance of nomination, the McAdoo managers in the democratic national convention interrupted the balloting for a non-emergency today, with several attempts to change the parliamentary situation to their own advantage.

In each successive proposal the anti-McAdoo forces operated with surprising solidarity, and in some cases the McAdoo people were unable to muster more than a small part of their own voting power for the proposals submitted by their leaders.

Won't Go to Kansas City

One of the resolutions voted down by an overwhelming majority would have provided for an adjournment of the convention to meet again in Kansas City on July 21. The McAdoo ranks broke the right and left when an attempt was made to muster them in support of the plan, and the opposition was so predominant that when New York was reached on the rail, all it took to be relieved of the necessity of casting five ninety votes for rejection. The request was denied under the rules.

Previously the convention, discussing more than 100 resolutions, had refused to adopt a resolution under which the low candidates on successive ballots would be dropped until only one remained in the field was narrowed to the leaders.

Combine Against McAdoo

Rising to a new prominence in the floor fight that accompanied the decisions, Governor E. W. Brewster of the Illinois democracy, was everywhere about the convention hall conferring with the Smith and favorite son leaders, and exhorting them to unite the McAdoo organization when a group of the Smith and favorite son managers met to consider the possibility of a compromise that would nominate a candidate by besting McAdoo entirely out of the reck.

Some of the conferees appeared hopeful of results in that direction before the day was over.

Total of the first ballot:

McAdoo, 523 1/2; Smith, 553 1/2; Davis, W. Va., 68; Underwood, 37 1/2; Glass, 25; Robinson, 21; Ritchie, 16 1/2; Sausbury, 6; Owen, 2; Ball, 5; Bryan, 2; Walsh, 1. Total, 1,087.

Albion Op.

McAdoo's vote was unchanged from the last ballot. Smith lost one and Davis gained 72.

McAdoo, 523 1/2; Smith, 553 1/2; Davis, W. Va., 68; Underwood, 37 1/2; Glass, 25; Robinson, 21; Ritchie, 16 1/2; Walsh, 21; Sausbury, 6; Owen, 2. (Continued on page 16)

Discussion among ministers from various parts of the nation on the larger-parish plan for rural churches brought out the fact that a majority of the clergy favor such a system. The plan already is in force in a number of western states. It was said, and bids fair to spread to middle western and southern sections in the near future.

Informal discussions and visits to points of interest and near Madison occupied the ministers yesterday.

FORT ATKINSON IN HUGE CELEBRATION

15,000 Persons Watch Fireworks at Night After Lively Day.

Fort Atkinson—Never in the history of Fort Atkinson has there been such a gathering as that which celebrated the Fourth of July here Friday.

It is estimated that there were 15,000 here in the afternoon, and more than 15,000 in the evening, to enjoy the program, staged under the auspices of the Fort Atkinson Legion and Troop P, 105th cavalry, Wisconsin National guard.

A varied program was given, ranging from a graceful pie contest to a dramatic exhibition. There was not a dull moment throughout the day. The parade, one of the principal features, was the best in Fort Atkinson in a decade. It was symbolic of the achievements of the four principal American wars—the Revolution, Rebellion, Spanish-American and the World wars.

In Three Sections
Major A. R. Langholf was marshal of the day and led the procession on North Main street at 10 o'clock. The parade was in three sections, the first being led by the Whitewater high school band, followed by city officials in cars and floats. Fraternal organizations, the fire department and the newly organized Legion drum corps were in the second section.

The Rev. J. S. Morris spoke at the patriotic exercises after the parade. A baseball game between Fort Atkinson and La Crosse was the feature of the afternoon. The exhibition drill by Troop P showed excellent horsemanship. Field events and contests were conducted.

When Little Staged
In the evening, Fort Atkinson was taken back to its early days when Indians roamed through this section, witnessing a show put on by "Indians" and a band of Wisconsin National guard troops. The "attack" center upon a stockade erected on the baseball diamond. As darkness settled, red flares lighted up the sky and disclosed a private seclusion seeking shelter for the night. Indians attacked and killed the sentinels who stood guard outside the stockade and precipitated a battle. The Americans retaliated and put the redskins to rout only after the stockade had been burned. A brilliant display of fireworks added to the demonstration.

Credit for the success of the celebration goes to Herbert Barrett, general chairman, and his corps of assistants, who have worked many weeks to assure a grand Fourth.

Stalights on Parade
The fire department was represented in the parade by the hand pump of 1850 and the motor truck of 1920 and motor pump of 1921. The new motor pump replaced the old one which had been in use for several months ago. Adolph Cherr and Louis Reich, both injured in the accident last fall, got a hand all along the line as they passed by, riding on the new pump.

The parade was nearly three quarters of a mile long and contained 30 floats.

Louis Hinkle won the cup for the blue rock shoot, breaking 94 out of 100 targets.

W. G. Gruetzmacher, Fort Atkinson, was awarded the vacuum sweeper. The leather arm chair went to Sawyer Armstrong of Jefferson. C. Munson of this city obtained the gold watch.

The day passed off in an orderly way, with no police calls. Hundreds of automobiles were

When Milady Goes a-Shopping

An exclusive fashion letter we receive weekly from the East tells us that the vogue for flannel is continuing there and taking on momentum each day, especially the flannel waistcoats which reminded me of those I saw at Brock's the other day. They were sleeveless, with neck, armholes, and tailored pockets bound with silk braid. They came separately or with skirts to match, making a complete suit for nine-seventy five. That brings me to the point of the many attractive skirts displayed at Brock's. Flannels, both plain and checked are mostly plain wrap-around styles with tailored slashed pockets, narrow belt, and perhaps a couple bound buttons and buttons, finishing the skirt down the side. Of the light summer fabrics, Roshanara plays an important role. In the plain, light shades such as white, yellow, green, tan and gray, etc., the more elaborate chenille em-broidered Roshanara crepes are made up perfectly plain to give the full effect of the attractive material. One I saw was particularly striking—an oyster white background of crepe, em-broidered in black and white chenille to form a large square. A cut in pocket and large pearl buttons were the only trimming. All of Brock's skirts will be reduced one-third during the July clearance.

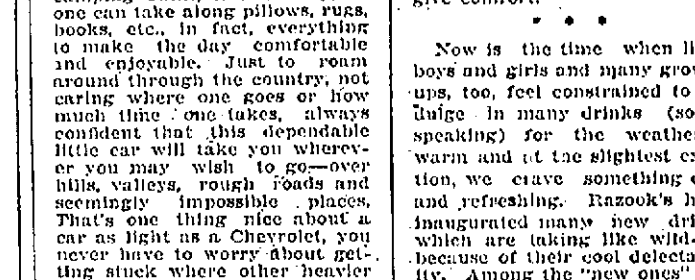

Behold the first touch of velvet has made its appearance in Janesville in the form of a slinky. A few binding outlining the sectional crown, a facing or an appliqued trimming in the peculiar shade of red or orange velvet bespeak the modes on small crepe, tulle, and ribbed silk, one of fashion's latest whims. The Golden Eagle is again the first to show these, along with many other popular novelties. A sport hat is fast turning upward from the face with just a plain band of white, blue, red or black and white for trimming. The Golden Eagle also show many of the clever fashions in this line. A dull green with the finest of narrow ribbons turning down very close to the face. For those to whom they are becoming, they are very smart for wear. Of course, white satin hats are always good and these seem to be shown mostly in the small shapes this season.

Tucked away in the depths of every closet, hidden away in little possibilities—shoes that have been discarded through one whim or another and forgotten. One may have purchased them at a bargain, and they may be of a light shade that has become stained and discolored. Possibly you never dreamed that those old style high shoes could have the latest cut and made into very presentable looking oxfords, or that a pair of soft pliable leather inner soles would make shoes, which had become starchy, out of shape, and trim and snugly once more, without the usual discomfort of the ordinary inner sole. All these miracles of rejuvenation of old shoes, and many more, have been accomplished at Weber's Rapid Shoe Repair Shop, 27 S. Main St., during the past few weeks. Girls have been flocking with their slippers on which the heels had become frayed from running over, and them ground down and made to look like new. Weber's carry all kinds of cleaners, polishers, shoes, suede brushes, and are glad to give advice on how to clean different kinds of shoes. If your feet are sore, and you feel cross and irritable, drop in time. No problem at all for the fortunate couple who own a Chevrolet coupe. Why not take along a tasty lunch, with possibly some cooling drink, and sit in the car, where the coffee or broth the steak and head for some lake to spend the day? The back end of the car opens up to provide ample space for a whole camping outfit. If necessary, so one can take along pillows, rugs, books, etc. In fact, everything to make the day comfortable and enjoyable. Just to roam around through the country, not caring where one goes or how much time one takes, always confident that this dependable little car will take you wherever you may wish to go—over hills, valleys, rough roads and seemingly impossible places. That's one thing nice about a car as light as a Chevrolet, you never have to worry about getting stuck where other heavier cars will. When you come to a nice stream where it looks as though it might be good fishing, just draw up and get out the rod and reel and the old bathing suit and dive in. Your lunch will taste a thousand times better than it would at home and you will return feeling like a new man, ready to tackle Monday's tasks with new vigor. Why waste one of the nice days we have, when you can be enjoying life more by simply telling the H. W. Motor Sales Co. to send along a Chevrolet coupe—and then take the winter to pay for it?

Now is the time when little boys and girls and many grown-ups, too, feel constrained to indulge in many drinks (softly speaking) for the weather is warm and at the slightest exertion, we crave something cool and refreshing. Razook's have inaugurated many new drinks which are taking like wild-fire because of their cool delectable taste. Among the "new ones" are Mink-Julp Freeze, Raspberry Freeze and Fresh Fruit Freeze, all combinations of fresh fruit and ice whipped to a frothy, ice cool drink. There is probably nothing more healthful, too, in hot weather than the juices of fresh fruits taken in one form or another. Maple Nut Cantaloupe Sundae is a heartier dish, consisting of a half of cantaloupe with maple ice cream and nuts over the top. Of course, you all know Razook's sodas for they are famous for them. In fact, it is a half of cantaloupe for miles just to get one, because they are so good. Razook's have made some special candies for hot weather, the kind that do not melt or become sticky. They are Jelly candies, gum drops, toasted coconut, tea biscuits, fruit paste and nut caramels, just the kind you like to have around the house to nibble on when you feel the need of something sweet.

Once upon a time there was a wonderful girl named Betty and a very fine man named Jack who got married and started in their little home to be properly "happy ever after" but there was just one flaw in their happiness—the cooking. This little wife, who had always been free to come and go with her

And Just a Word for William Jennings Bryan

Long ago, way back in 1904, William Jennings Bryan, younger than now, still with his voice unbroken and his vigor unimpaired by years, confronting a hostile convention which had just nominated Parker for president, in a plea for the platform adopted, said to the delegates assembled, "It may be said that I have not finished the course, but it also may be said that I have kept the faith."

Thursday afternoon, standing before, not a hostile convention, but a hostile gallery made up of the Tammany howlers of New York city and its alien-minded outlook on the world in general, u cry went out: "Get down! You haven't a friend in the world."

How little the person who made that statement knew his country. How little he knew about friends and where men grow them. It may be that men differ with William Jennings Bryan on his political attitude and it may be they differ with him on his scientific attitude toward evolution and the origin of species, but there are few men in all the 112 millions making up the people of the United States who have so many friends. Whatever we may think of him, wrong or right, we do know he has kept the faith. Even when he was not being voted for in the days when he was a candidate for the presidency, men admired his fighting ability and his deep, though we might think, his misguided sincerity.

"Not a friend in the world?" Why, long after the hoodlum who said that, has gone to a grave unremembered except by a few who may have taken a drink with him in his political district, Bryan will be remembered in millions of homes in this United States. It will be impossible to write the history of the United States without the name of William Jennings Bryan on its pages for the last 28 years.

The convention in New York was one of a gallery rabble. It has been the worst ever held in the United States. Nothing like it has been known heretofore. We have had no such scenes of rowdiness and dock-walker politics as have been exhibited in New York. Bryan has been out of place in that mob of gunmen. Any other decent man has been out of place. Women have not been given respectful treatment. The chairman has been insulted and "razed." Ward-heeler politics have been the kind the Smith supporters have attempted in a great national convention. They think it is a prize fight.

As for Bryan, he seems doomed to be defeated again. He wrote some of the platform, had much to do with the making of many of the planks, but he might better have saved his time. The rabble in control of the convention does not care what is in the platform, probably would never read it if they could, and would hardly understand his phrases if they could read its words.

But nevertheless, while we will go out and smite the platform and the candidates of Mr. Bryan or his party, hip and thigh, yet we shall still have admiration for the ability and bravery of the same William Jennings Bryan, and friendship for him as an American and a fellow citizen.

"It looks like a dark horse."—Many newspaper headlines. It looks more like a dark horse.

Governor Upham

One of the men missed by the Grand Army comrades who camp here for the Wisconsin state encampment, was William H. Upham, former commander of the state and in 1895 elected governor of Wisconsin. But the reason why this veteran of the Civil war and regular army soldier was not here was that he was ill and on his death bed. He has since passed from the ken of man. Never a politician in any sense of the word, always interested in good government and progress, William H. Upham was one of the last of the older lumbermen who had a mighty influence on the political history of the state. The last governor of this type was Edward Scofield, still living at a ripe old age—older even than Maj. Upham. The lumbermen in politics, who reached high places, included Harrison Ludington, Philatus Sawyer, Isaac Stephenson and J. W. Babcock, and there were others who had much to do with formulation of policies and were always in the forefront of political battles.

While by reason of his age for the last ten years Maj. Upham has not been keenly active in politics, yet he has always had something to do with public policies and been a factor in his own section of the state. Best of all with him, the thing he loved to dwell upon was the experience as a soldier in the civil war. Enlisting at 20 he went into the 2nd Wisconsin, the only regiment from the state in the battle of Bull Run and in the desperate resistance of his regiment, was captured and taken to Libby prison.

He became a friend of the great president, was appointed by Mr. Lincoln to West Point and as a member of the regular army saw service in the unconquered south. Then he came again to Wisconsin and in the development of this state was one of the important factors. Being governor was one of the lesser services he rendered to mankind and his state. Others were larger and had to do with what Solon said was an achievement, making two blades of grass grow where but one grew before. He developed a city, aided and became a part of a community which

THE PROBLEM OF THE PACKERS

Washington.—The long standing controversy between the Chicago packers, known generally as the Big Five, and the government has entered another stage as the result of the decision of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia that the California cooperative canneries may intervene in an action to set aside or modify the packers' consent decree which was entered into in 1920.

This decree provided that the packers should not engage in what are called unrelated lines of industry; that is, that they should confine their business to the meat slaughtering and packing industries.

The decision of the court was regarded as a victory for the Chicago packers and has resulted in farmers of the nation making a fresh effort to have the government refrain from it.

Such famous farm bloc senators as Magnus Johnson of Minnesota and Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota have submitted to the senate elaborate data in which they allege that the packers have been seeking to extend their field unconscionably. Farm lobbies at Washington have joined in the movement and it is to be expected that the packers and the California cooperative canneries will have to fight hard to hold the substantial amount of ground they have already gained.

The position of the packers is that they have violated no law and that no court has any right to prevent them from selling groceries as well as meat. They point out with much force that while the supreme court of the District of Columbia entered the 1920 decree providing that the packers should stick solely to the packing business, the question of whether a private enterprise can be prevented from handling any sort of product has never been passed upon by the supreme court of the United States.

Attorneys for the packers say that were the high court to examine this question on its merits, it would have difficulty in finding any legislative basis for stopping such merchandising. The packers point out that they do not seek to sell goods which are not lawful. They assert that it is difficult to understand why it should be unlawful for one company to sell groceries, or grain or biological products while it is perfectly lawful for another company to engage in such trade.

The position which has been taken by the department of justice and which is being supported by the farmers of the country is that what makes such merchandising by the packers unlawful is the fact of their gigantic size.

The federal trade commission, reporting upon an investigation of the packers, declared: "Five meat packers, Armour, Swift, Morris, Wilson and Cudahy, and their subsidiary and affiliated companies, have monopolistic control of the meat industry and are reaching out for like domination in other products. Their manipulations of the market entitle every citizen to the use of the term 'without regard to law.'"

In another place the same commission said: "It appears that five great packing concerns of the country have attained such a dominant position that they control at will the market in which they sell their products, and hold the fortunes of their competitors in their hands."

These are bitter words to come from an official agency of the United States government. The charges are, as might be expected, denied categorically by the meat packers, and the complicated litigation now pending, which is of interest to the whole people since it concerns the handling of the nation's food, is in large part, is a result of the sharp difference of opinion existing between the commission of the California cooperative canneries with the ease is that this organization is seeking to have the consent decree set aside or modified so that the packers can handle their canned goods. The canneries, unlike agricultural producers in some other parts of the country, take the side of the packers and declare that the fine distributing organization maintained by the Chicago concerns enables them to handle canned goods to the best possible advantage of both producer and the general public.

All the evidence which has been taken shows that the packers do maintain what is probably the most efficient distributing system for food products ever devised. The court of appeals of the District of Columbia recently granted the canneries' petition to intervene in the case in an effort to have the decree set aside. Arguments to show why the packers should be permitted to sell the canneries' products as well as other lines of merchandise will be heard at the term of court to be held next fall. The big fight to determine whether the government or the packers shall win their contentions will come to a head then.

The farmers' national council, a farm lobby with Washington headquarters, filed a brief opposing the petition of the canneries to intervene in this effort was made to show that the canneries, although producers of agricultural products, were taking a different stand from the agriculturalists represented by the farmers' national council because they were dominated by the Chicago packers. "The hand is the hand of Esau, but the voice is Jacob's voice," the brief declared. Nevertheless, the court of appeals decided it would grant the canneries' petition and hear what they have to say at next term's argument.

Counsel for the packers emphasize the point that, while they signed the 1920 consent decree, they made it a specific condition that it be definitely stated that issuance of the decree did not judge the packers to be guilty of violation of law. The packers see a violation of the stipulation in the present attitude of the government. They accuse the department of justice of attacking the validity of the decree by repudiating a fundamental part of it.

While the government claims that the packers controlled more than 700 concerns engaged in merchandising food, the packers reply that the charge that they threaten a monopolistic food trust is absurd. Any collusion among the five packers is emphatically denied by them and, it is stated, the largest packer handles but 15 per cent of the nation's meat business. The issue is the issue of the decree. It was shown that they handled less than 5 per cent of products handled by wholesale grocers. They take the position that an economic loss is entailed when their organizations are able to distribute many lines of food products in the most economical and efficient manner.

The government's general view of the situation is that no company or relatively small group can be permitted to build up a network of control over various lines of business without a threat of monopoly, dangerous to the public, being implied.

Meantime, farm interests are seeking to have government control of the packers taken from the department of agriculture and lodged with the federal trade commission.

came up, out of a swamp and was well named "Marshfield" for that was exactly what it was. Governor Upham was a good citizen.

It may be a matter of interest to know that a delegate to the democratic convention is Mrs. Mark Antony. Cleopatra will be glad to know about this.

After the farmers read the democratic platform they will wonder what the democratic party means by it.

The Cleveland convention is going into business with its hair in fashion starting off with a Bob.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.
WAITING FOR DESSERT
Old folks make me tired. They sit talking over and over again. Seems they're never going to quit. So that I can get my pie. I don't understand why they do not hurry up and eat. So that I can go and play. With the fellows in the street.

When I fidget in my chair Mother shakes her head at me. Or she says: "Be quiet there. You'll talk the dinner out of me. They the meal drags on and on. While I yawn and stretch and sigh. 'Till the daylight will be gone. Long before they serve the pie.

When we're company for tea I sit twisting in my seat. Wishing they would bring to me. All we're going to have to eat. I could bolt my food and run. Mother will not let me do that. Telling me when dinner's done. "Twill be time enough to go.

I don't see why I should wait. Listening to a lot of stuff. After I have cleared my plate. And have said I've had enough. Mother says the way I act Sometimes makes her want to cry. But I'll tell you it's a fact. They should hurry up the pie. (Copyright, 1924, by Edgar A. Guest)

HOROSCOPE

MONDAY, JULY 7, 1924.
Good and evil influences conflict today, according to astrology. While the Sun, Mercury and Neptune are all in benefic aspect, Saturn and Uranus are adverse.

It will be wise to begin this week by making the most of all opportunities that depend on the most of all, for the way is believed to incline them toward real helpfulness.

This should be a lucky rule for all who seek employment and especially for those in fields where the imagination plays a distinct part. The President of the United States should benefit at this time, for he has a planetary direction assuring the greatest amount of newspaper support.

All editors, publishers and writers should enjoy a brief period of great prosperity, for the stars indicate that they will be much in demand.

Messages of great importance are to come from overseas, the seers prophesy, and international business is to be very active. All the signs appear to forecast an upheaval in industrial circles where there will be increasing unrest and discontent.

Labor will exercise unusual influence in the national election, if the aspect of Saturn is rightly interpreted. The death of a political leader of radical principles is prognosticated by astrologers.

This should be a lucky wedding day, although it has a sign or two that inclines toward caution.

Women are warned to combat the forces of greed, vanity and selfishness loosed in the world, for they must return to old standards of living if they would help the world to progress toward real civilization.

Much trouble may be expected in many parts of the United States during the summer and certain crops will suffer.

Farmers should be exceedingly careful in cultivating their crops this season, for they may meet with various discouraging conditions, including that of the locusts.

Persons whose birthday is in the coming year, or who desire to prosper, "There is an encouraging outlook for all who pursue conservative methods of business."

Children born on this day may be free and generous in excess. These subjects of Cancer usually make money easily and part with it recklessly. They should be extremely talented and reliable.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.
GRAVITY WILL GET YOU BY AND BY
It might have been better for the health of the world if that apple had dropped for plunk on old Mr. Newton's head. The law of gravitation seems to work against all our best health interests. The force of gravity impedes the circulation and retards the digestion. In many instances much to the individual's embarrassment and sometimes to his undoing. This inexorable law of gravitation gets us all sooner or later, even though we strive to evade it by a visit to the crematory and a clause directing that the ashes be scattered on the winds. But let's not be so serious about it. It's what we do with it that counts. If you take life or yourself too seriously gravity will get you before you are half through. It over-takes a lot of good people who are quite unprepared for it in general way, but childishly untutored in the ways of health. Gravity gets in its worst blows under cover of dignity which is too commonly confused with earnestness.

Patriotism, exclaimed old Sam Johnson, is the last refuge of a scoundrel—and we might add nowadays the surest way to control his vote. Dignity is something like that, you see what I mean? Haven't you room here to write the continuity. "If I could have my own way," remarked an editor who was about to bury me, "I would have had a word made even our obituaries facetious, slangy or humorous—but our readers resent it, and so you'll have to go." This readers always persisted in pressing their stupidity upon me and asking for medical advice—and because they didn't get it they decided I wasn't earnest.

Many of the present medical ideas are conjectural, not established facts, but just theories as yet unconfirmed. For instance, the present medical belief is that the disagreeable and depressing effects of "bad" or impure blood are due to various, moisture and stiltiness of the air, since the familiar refreshing effect of "fresh air" may be obtained by cooling the air and moving it with fans even in a tight chamber. But this belief is based on the observations and opinions of students who failed to take into consideration certain vital factors which may have much to do with the question of fresh air. Namely, the ultra-violet or invisible rays of sunlight and the possible presence of some unidentified substance of the nature of a vitamin in fresh or open air. Equally conjectural is the belief that old age causes hardening of the arteries, or vice versa. We have only our own opinions about that.

And so with the wearing of corsets—do the women grow ungainly because they wear corsets or do they resort to corsets because they are ungainly?

Do we become dignified because we are more earnest in our aim in life? Or do we assume the sorry ways of dignity because we think we can put it over so?

This is meant to be an uplifting talk, fit to read even at the breakfast table, and so I'm not going to drag in any morbid conditions which gravity tends to produce in those who grow too dignified. All I want to say now is this: It is my contention, though not an established fact, that the force of gravity constantly antagonizes health in our upright posture and in our order to counteract this influence every individual should cultivate as a daily habit such exercises or maneuvers as will oppose or momentarily reverse the force of gravity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
What Is the Long Necked Amelior? You claim the skin will not absorb anything. If the pores are open and why don't they take in something? Just as well? (C. C. J.)
The pores do not open and sweat. There are no pores in the skin. The sweat is excreted by little glands which secrete into the pores, but that is misleading because the pores do not open. It is an opening which absorbs something. I claim nothing about it; I merely mention it privately and think it is a good thing, unless it is broken. There can be no argument about a fact. Your difficulty perhaps depends on the fault, and the fault of politeness in popular education—the lady knows so many things about physiology and health and high school. The lady has unfortunately taken the instruction provided by the nostrum makers, the quack doctors and other malefactors too seriously. Not only is the layman extensively misinformed, but the medical profession is enlightened. I have been roundly abused because I deny gullible people the privilege of thinking that food, drink or medicine through the "pores."

Second Hand Smoke.
Will working in a room that is blue from cigar smoke cause injury to health? (Miss R. B.)
The effect is about the same as though you smoked yourself, though of course you do not absorb so much tobacco in a given time.

Youth and Pimples.
I am engaged to a young man 20 years of age, but another doctor has told me because he has so many pimples on his face. (L. B.)
Most young men have pimples on their faces, and it is no sign of anything. Most youths have 'em more or less. But in any case a prospective bridegroom should present his health certificate to the bride's parents before he asks consent.

Q. What foods keep people cool?
A. The body-builders which nourish without much heat are milk, eggs and fish. Fried foods, pastries, cakes, gravies and sweets should be eaten sparingly, while fruit and green vegetables should be an important place in the diet.

Q. Do any child welfare laws prohibit children below legal age from appearing on the stage in Pennsylvania?
A. Yes, it does.

Q. Eleven stage acts featuring children below the legal age for employment have been withdrawn as the result of recent legislation in Pennsylvania. In this case, the state department of labor and industry, of which Royal Necker is secretary, prosecuted a theatrical manager who presented two children in a so-called "musical" dancing and educational act for violation of the child labor law. A fine of $100 and costs was imposed.

Q. Must a veteran of the world war make a personal application for the adjusted service pay?
A. The veteran must apply personally unless he is physically or mentally incapacitated in which case the application may be made by such representative of the veteran and in such manner as shall be prescribed jointly by the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy.

Q. What year, month and day was the big freeze in Ohio that destroyed the wheat crop and other vegetation?
A. C. C. The big freeze in Ohio occurred June 5, 1859.

Q. Why is a soap bubble round?
A. A soap bubble is round because it has a surface tension which causes equal pressure in all directions. The soap bubble is covered with a film and the tendency of liquids covered by such a film is to assume a spherical shape.

Q. What will keep a silver chandelier from tarnishing?
A. After polishing it, lacquer it with white shellac. The metal should be absolutely dry before this process is begun.

LICENSES HERE FOR OUT STATE DRIVERS

Question of Validity to Be Determined by the Courts.
Madison.—A supreme court test of the question of requiring licenses and fees of automobile drivers and owners from other states who frequently or continuously operate vehicles in this state is in prospect as a result of a test case brought by the secretary of state's office, according to an announcement by Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state.

The case is of vital interest to both Wisconsin and Minnesota, since it directly involves validity of the Minnesota vehicle act, according to Mr. Zimmerman.

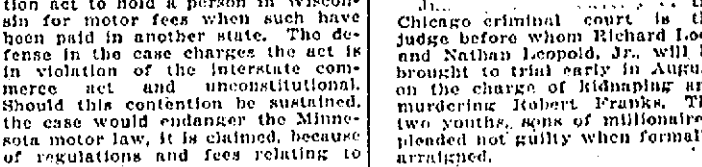

Suit was filed against Earl Randall for driving a motor car bus owned by a St. Paul firm. The case was filed at Blomworth, Wis., and is now pending in circuit court with the intention of officials to carry it through the supreme court for final decision. The great was made and suit filed on grounds that Randall operates the bus in Wisconsin almost every day.

The main question raised is whether it is against the federal transportation act to hold a person in Wisconsin for motor fees when he has been paid in another state. The defense in the case charges the act is in violation of the interstate commerce act and unconstitutional.

The contention be sustained, the case would endanger the Minnesota motor law, it is claimed, because of regulations and fees relating to out-of-state cars.

The state department bases its contention on a ruling from the attorney general's department, holding that motor buses and trucks operated daily in this state must be registered in Wisconsin, in its opinion the legal department declares:

"It seems the trucks in question have used the highway in Wisconsin for a period longer than 10 days after the date of their entry into the state within the statutory meaning, notwithstanding the fact that the trucks are not licensed in Wisconsin. It is unlikely that the legislature meant to exempt every truck registered in another state unless it should be in Wisconsin for 10 days without interruption."

Judge John R. Caverly.

MONEY AND MARKETS

Wall Street, New York.—The evident tendency toward conservatism which has been manifest in much of the Democratic convention proceedings, and the increasing conviction that in any case President Coolidge will be re-elected have strongly tended during the past week to maintain market confidence and to keep prices up to a satisfactory level. True, on some days minor recessions have occurred, but they have evidently been little more than the normal market fluctuations, especially characteristic of a dull season of the year. For the most part the public has maintained an encouraging attitude of hopefulness and confidence.

Good Business Predicted.—Thorough surveys of business made during the week by several trustworthy agencies have found manufacturing and merchants all over the country in an evidently hopeful frame of mind. They are disposed to think that such recession as lately occurred will pass away with the closing of the conventions and a resumption of active business. In the confidence that the election of the coming autumn will turn out conservatively and safely. They also foresee a natural revival of demand, due to the fact that as investigations have shown, but little overproduction or overstocking has occurred anywhere, so that there has been a natural disposition to keep working forces in readiness for the resumption of buying, which will certainly occur as consumers find it necessary to purchase for the purpose of supplying immediate wants. Steel prices have continued firm and demand is reported better. The agricultural outlook is considerably brighter in most staples than has been true for several weeks, with the weather conditions far more satisfactory than for some time past. General retail business has improved, bearing in mind the seasonal dullness which always develops at this time of year, and making comparison accordingly with the corresponding period of a year ago. The textile situation is one of the least satisfactory, yet the latest available statistics published show that the recession in the number of active spindles during May was only 12.5 per cent and that the industry, taken as a whole, is a good deal better than two-thirds occupied. These figures will show up better no doubt if they could be obtained for the present month, since the month of June thus far has shown improvement rather than recession. Wholesale prices are about stable, while on the other hand increase of values in farm products has taken place on a very broad scale, particularly with respect to cereals, which will be of direct benefit to the farmer and do much to dispel the gloom which has prevailed in the agricultural sections.

Interest in Rails Continues.—The interest in the railroads, which has been so marked a feature of the stock market for a good while past, has continued in a very pronounced way. It has been helped along by a revival of traffic, carloadings for the week ended June 19 being over 900,000, which shows no further decline from the corresponding figure of last year. Earning statements for the major roads are not as good as a year ago but are nevertheless indicating a very satisfactory position of affairs. The attitude toward the consolidation of railroads has been illustrated during the past week by the apparent consummation of plans for the joint control of the Erie and the Nickel Plate Railroad, a development which has long been anticipated. Other railroad projects for leasing or consolidation are apparently making good headway and it may be expected that if things go on as at present there will be less necessity for governmental action looking toward rail consolidations, because those that are obviously demanded by circumstances will have been completed before the Government gets around to them. Some resumption of the placing of equipment orders also points to a confident attitude on the part of rail managers and there is undoubtedly a more hopeful point of view in the transportation world than for some time past. While the Democratic convention outgivings continue, representing the United States in an authoritative way might be expected to attend the inter-allied conversations when they begin, as they are expected to do in the near future. According to preliminary forecasts, the time at the conference will be devoted largely to matters relating to debt and finance, in which the United States is naturally interested, and should a satisfactory outcome be arrived at the very early application of the principal features of the Dawes plan might be looked for. Of course, the possibility greatly strengthens the attitude of hopefulness with respect to business prospects which has been maintained of late and encourages the belief that both in exporting and in financing foreign demand there is reason to expect that the country will experience the consequences of a revival in the near future. Meanwhile exchange has not altered very greatly, traders evidently desiring to get decidedly more positive information before they embark upon any new commitments of an important description.

Discount Rates and Finance.—While more Federal Reserve banks have cut their rates to 3 1/2 per cent, the Federal Reserve board is making that figure practically unalterable for the country as a whole, reform now evidently favors the raising of the British bank rate, in which case the United States will naturally have reason to expect a position as the lowest current interest rate country in the world. Many projects for international financing are already on foot and there could be some assurance that pending European controversies would be reasonably disposed of considerable activity in this market might be expected. Dealers with the hands in new government bonds and particularly in the French issues is partly the outcome of a more encouraging outlook in Europe, although influenced also by the very low rates for money which have been prevalent in this market. There is no indication thus far of any growth in demand for Federal Reserve resources, the ratio for the current week being 22.5 per cent, while bills discounted show no perceptible tendency to growth. On the whole the member banks of the country have pretty well supplied the market with the funds they need, but they are still moderately in the market as purchasers of securities, and the market for securities is being helped to maintain existing levels of value.

Market Review and Outlook.—The waiting tendency induced by the inter-allied discussions has of course restricted operations during the week and yet the turnover has been reasonably good. Values have held their own well, particularly in the case of securities, and the mergers and the improving traffic conditions have combined to help matters. Ability of prices to recover after minor reactions is shown by the indifference of the capable people who firmly believe in a business revival next fall, and with this hopeful feeling existing in that respect it is not strange that holders of securities generally should refuse to part with them after having held them through the trying session of Congress; indeed, the close manner in which stocks are held is shown by the indifference paid to the commencement of a wholesale suit against the gasoline producing companies by the Government, the announcement not having caused a ripple even in the oil group. All this goes to show that the market is really in an impregnable position, shareholders apparently being fully convinced that nothing will take place that will prevent the election of Coolidge and Dawes, and when this becomes more assured, business in all directions will speed up which naturally will have a direct bearing on the share list.

Anticipated. Other railroad projects for leasing or consolidation are apparently making good headway and it may be expected that if things go on as at present there will be less necessity for governmental action looking toward rail consolidations, because those that are obviously demanded by circumstances will have been completed before the Government gets around to them. ## COL. MCCOY LIKELY TO HEAD 32ND DIV.

Madison—Col. George P. McCoy, Madison, has been selected by Gen. Robert R. McCoy, Spartan, as commander of the 32nd Infantry brigade, guard officials announced Thursday. Gen. McCoy is to be named to command the 1st and 2nd divisions with the grade of brigadier general.

Although Col. Wilbur M. Lee, Oconto, in senior colonel of the Wisconsin national guard, is to be named to command the 32nd Infantry brigade, Col. O'Connell ranks next to Col. Lee among national guard colonels in the state. Col. Lee now commands the 12th Infantry regiment and Col. McCann has been in reserve since the disbandment of the 1st Infantry a year ago.

It is said that Col. O'Connell will be given an opportunity to acquaint himself with the work of commanding a brigade at the annual encampment at Camp Douglas which opens July 12, although Gen. McCoy will retain command of the brigade until his appointment to command the division is officially recognized.

TRINITY RECTOR ON MONTH'S VACATION

Leaving for a month's vacation Monday, the Rev. Henry Williamson, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, will take a trip to New York City to visit his family. During his absence the services at Trinity church will go on as usual with the Rev. W. J. Benson, Milwaukee, officiating.

ARGENTINA GROWING COTTON.—Buenos Aires—Argentina this year probably will produce 47,000 bales of cotton, figures which denote a material increase in the industry.

BREAKING RECORDS OF BALLOTS BACK IN '60

Then there was another battle; other states and delegates seceded again at Baltimore. Many of them, this time, from northern states. The old platform was accepted, battles took place over the report of the committee on credentials and its report; South Carolina seceded, and went away amid shouts of "God, now we will have an honest election!" And then a ballot was taken and Douglas won. That was the 25th. To make it sure, another still was ordered and here is the result of the last ballot, the record in number established then and never broken heretofore until about 10 o'clock Thursday night in Jacksonville, Fla. Douglas received 742, Breckenridge 714, and Guthrie 612. John C. Breckenridge was nominated by the seceding convention at Baltimore and the democratic party was hopelessly split for that election. It made the election of Abraham Lincoln sure.

In Baltimore in 1912, there was a deadlock and four ballots, in San Francisco there was a deadlock for two days and 44 ballots. But New York, with a series of ballots taking longer than ever before known, and a series of seceding delegates, has beat the world's record and set a pace for all time to come without a doubt. Since it has been 64 years from Charleston to New York, the highest number of votes in a republican convention was 37 in 1830.

New York made trouble at Charleston with a contesting delegation headed by Fernando Wood, a Tammany politician, who was expelled with all manner of questionable acts of dilatory to the government and was known as a southern sympathizer.

Calhoun was an ex-Whig and this fact was thrust at him by delegates as a reason why he could not be fair. Calhoun, however, was a solid Union sympathizer and in his speech, said the "democratic party has a mission to strike down traitors and fanatics arrayed against it in one section of the nation." The unit and two thirds rule came up frequently for decision and action by the convention and irritated the delegates in 1860 as well as in New York.

No matter what the platform, said a correspondent the other day, Smith or McAdoo will accept anything so long as they get the nomination. In 1860 the delegates to the New York Tribune said it did not matter what kind of a platform was adopted at Charleston, "Douglas is willing to accept anything." No chance in 64 years.

One delegate at Charleston dropped dead. It was Gov. Robinson of Vermont. That was in the days when Vermont elected democratic governors.

One of the planks in the platform was for the annexation of Cuba which the southern slave owners were holding out as a bribe for slaves and a market for southern goods.

Douglas failed to win. He did not fail to support the union, however. He died in 1862, but before his death he had remained loyal to birth and traditions. He was a loyal northern man and did what he could to combat secession.

GUARDSMEN TO CAMP JULY 12

Opening of Douglas State Meeting of State Troops.

That Date.

Madison—Recruitment will be mixed with work for the more than 5,000 Wisconsin national guardsmen who will gather at Camp Douglas July 12, the first annual encampment, under plans completed by Adjutant General Ralph M. Immel.

Under the program arranged all drill work will be done during the morning hours and the afternoon will be turned over exclusively to recreation and sports. All units of the guards are being requested by the adjutant general to have the following items for competition: Indoor baseball, outdoor baseball, track, and tug-of-war.

Each unit also has been requested to make preparations for entering contests in the following events: Quartets, solos, musical and vaudeville sketches.

A baseball championship competition will be held. The contest will have its baseball field and elimination games will be played by the various companies. In this way regimental championships will be determined and the regimental winners will compete for the state championship. A field day also is to be arranged for the Sixty-fourth brigade and for the cavalry. The following events will take place: 100 yard dash, 440 yard run, 880 yard run, 220 yard dash, 1.5 mile cross country, one-half mile relay, running broad jump, running high jump, shot put, and tug-of-war.

Guardsmen will also have an opportunity to compete in volley ball, push and cage ball and horseshoe games.

Gov. Blaine will visit the guard camp and review the units on July 21. Elaborate preparations are being made in celebration of the governor's visit. While there he will award rifle medals.

The first guard camp will continue from July 12 to July 26. The second camp will run from July 27 to Aug. 30. Approximately 2,500 guardsmen will attend each of the camps.

"NO MAN'S LAND"

Land chortles of knee shook the windows of the Title Editor's sanctum and brought startled faces peering around the side of the door this week. This was the choicest collection of contributed wit and humor received in a long, long time, and the star of the lot was the story of "No Man's Land," contributed by a member of the rapidly-growing-famous Lewis family in Evansville. Mrs. M. W. Lewis carried off the $25.00 and furnished the Title Editor and his colleagues in the editorial room with gobs of mirth. So did several others. "Storage Batteries," from Mrs. Raymond Miller, Janesville, had strong support in the editorial staff, and was just a nose behind the winner. Three good ones came from

Mrs. G. H. Davis, Janesville, route 2. They are: "Father Hant Spoke to Mother Since I remember the old song?" "Father Was Out" (another) and "Papa Love Mama." Roy M. Cox, Janesville, suggests "Preparedness and the Open Door." Mrs. C. E. Hershell, Janesville, offers "Preparing for a Grand and Glorious Fourth." (The present spouse must be the third, I take it.) "Preparedness" was suggested by three or four contributors, and Mrs. W. M. Hackett, Whitewater, quotes "Rolling Through an Unfriendly World." Hoping you are the same, TITLE EDITOR.

P. S.—I see a postal card, not more than 12 words, and have it here by Thursday noon, sure.

Waiting to Take Little Ones Home Again—From Ruins

Firemen searching the front seat section of the State Theater, in Lorain, O., for the bodies of children. Many youngsters were in the movie theater when the tornado swept over the city, reducing it to ruins and trapping hundreds watching the movie. In the background can be seen agonized relatives waiting to take their little ones home again—or to what was home.

Where Scores Found Death While Seeking Pleasure

All that remains of the once beautiful and imposing parkhouse on the bathing beach in the city park of Lorain, O. Scores were killed here and more than a hundred automobiles swept into the lake.

FIRST WOMAN LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR IS NOW OFFICIATING IN NEW MEXICO

Mrs. Soledad C. Chacon.

The first woman lieutenant governor of a state now is officiating in New Mexico. Mrs. Soledad C. Chacon, secretary of state, was elevated to the office, succeeding Jose A. Bach. In the event of the absence of Governor Hinde, she will be called upon to be acting governor and preside over the state senate. She is a member of one of the oldest of Spanish-American families.

Mother's Vote Convicts Boy Of Murder in First Degree

Mrs. Lois Leigh (above), Lansing, Mich., mother, cast the vote which convicted another mother's son, Martin Woehler (inset) of first degree murder. Mrs. Leigh was forelady of the jury which tried Woehler on the charges of killing a man in a holdup.

Lorain Rises From Ruins to Stage Comeback

Lorain, O., is wasting no time in brooding over the tornado which reduced the city to a mass of wreckage. Its comeback is already under way, with a reconstruction program calling for rebuilding, not repair. The speed with which the city is getting back to its feet is illustrated by this photo of Broadway, the principal business thoroughfare, taken 48 hours after the tornado, showing it clear of wreckage.

14-YEAR-OLD VIRGINIA LEE CORBIN WILL PLAY "PETER PAN" IN MOVIES

ASSERTS WOMEN'S PEACE SOCIETIES ARE "RED" TOOLS

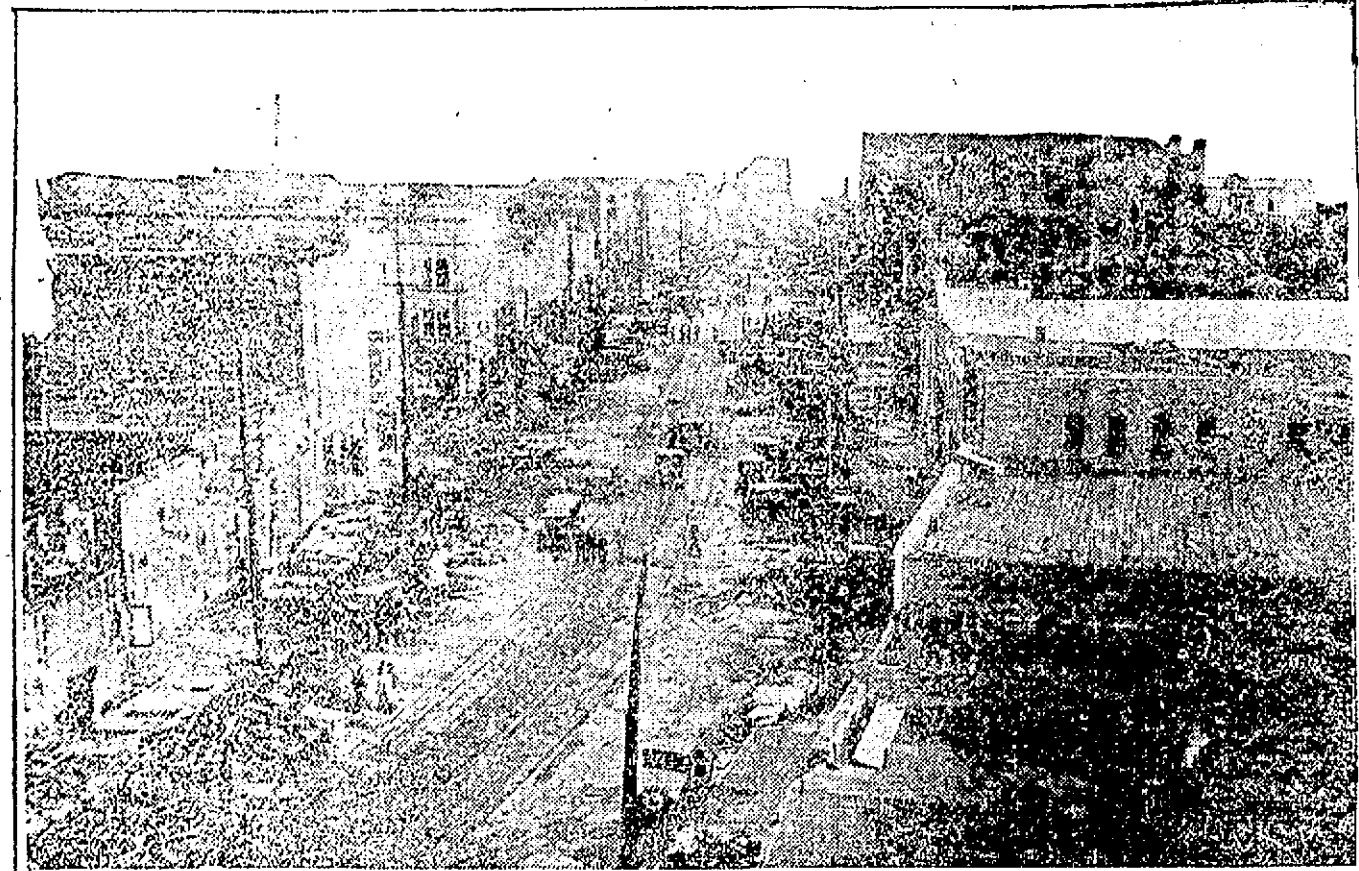

Brig. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, commander of Ft. Bragg, N. C., is creating a stir on a lecture trip on which he is avowing that various women's organizations formed to prevent war, are tools in the hands of Communist representatives of Soviet Russia.

Virginia Lee Corbin.

At last it is decided. Fourteen-year-old Virginia Lee Corbin will have the title role in the film version of J. M. Barrie's "Peter Pan." She was awarded the part made famous on the stage by Maude Adams after a score of stars had been considered, including Mary Pickford, who refused it, and Jackie Coogan. Virginia is a native of Prescott, Ariz., but now lives in San Francisco. She has had wide experience in motion pictures and vaudeville.

RECONSTRUCTION UNDER WAY IN TORNADO-RACKED LORAIN

Looking down Broadway, the principal business street in Lorain, O., toward Lake Erie, showing the work on the catastrophic tornado. The scene is reminiscent of Tokyo after the earthquake. Work of restoring business houses has already begun.

WOMAN EMERGENCY MAYOR FIRES POLICE CHIEF, NAMES SELF

When Mayor E. J. Brown left Seattle to attend the Democratic convention, Mrs. Henry Landes, president of the city council and acting mayor, demanded a shake-up in the police department, and when her orders were not carried out, she fired the police chief and installed herself.

WHEN AMERICA DECLARED HER FREEDOM 148 YEARS AGO

The Fourth of July serves as a reminder of an art treasure of the United States considered by experts to be one of the most remarkable portrayals of an historic event ever made. It is "Signing of the Declaration of Independence," painted by John Trumble, who received $8,000 from congress for it.

An Important Part of the Earth's Crust COVERED Only By Gazette ADVERTISING

Business is GOOD in the Janesville-Wisconsin market—for those who go after it! Conditions today remind us of the small town store-keeper who said to the live-wire traveling salesman: "How do you find business?" The salesman replied: "By going after it."

There IS business for the go-getter. The amount of business obtainable depends entirely upon the ability of the person in charge of the go-getting. It is essential that you have quality merchandise. That your prices are reasonable. That the service offered by your establishment is above reproach, but foremost in the selling plan comes the problem of how to get your message before the buyers of your territory.

There is just one part of the earth's crust that interests the merchants of this locality and that is the Janesville, Wisconsin, market, the territory pictured in the map above. There is just one advertising medium that covers this market. That medium is the Janesville Gazette and the Gazette covers it thoroughly daily.

The Gazette circulation in this territory is exceptionally complete. The reader interest which this paper enjoys is a principal factor in building business and selling merchandise for those who use its advertising columns. This circulation and reader interest is just as strong in the rural communities as in the cities of this market. The farmers of this territory are undoubtedly as strong financially as any spot in the United States owing to the enormous amount of dairying and diversified farming carried on.

Best of all this market can be covered at an exceedingly low cost. A full page ad in the Gazette costs less than 4-5 of a cent per home, delivered.

Right now is the time to sell merchandise. There is no dead season for a live-wire merchant. Our advertising representatives will be glad to plan with you to get the most response from your advertising dollar. Call 2500 now.

When you bought your car, one of the greatest factors in influencing you, was the general finish and appearance of the car. You not only want a car to take you where you want to go, but you want a car you can take a pride in owning. There is no doubt whatever, you get a great deal more pleasure when driving a car that has a fresh, glistening body than you do when driving one that looks old and dull.

The question is, how long can the finish of the average car be kept shining and bright? The answer is, it depends entirely on the treatment it receives. The finest body finish can be ruined in a very short time by carelessness or improper treatment, while with proper care it will last for at least one year and perhaps two go about it. If you are going to wash it out in the open and the sun is very warm, select a spot somewhere in the shade. If you attempt to wash out in the hot sun, the water dries off before you have a chance to use the chamois, with the result that the finish has a fine collection of streaky marks. For the same reason it is a wise plan never to wash your car directly after a long run on a very warm day when the body is warm—give it a chance to cool off.

If you have a nice shady spot, let's start. Before you turn on the water, remove the nozzle from the hose, so that the water will flow without any force behind it. Neglect of this little point has ruined the finish on thousands of cars. When the water strikes the body with any great force, it simply drives the mud and dirt into the varnish and permanently dulls the finish.

In washing, allow the water to flow on gently over the body, at the same time sponging softly in straight lines to and fro. Never sponge with a circular motion, for if there is any grit in the sponge, the circular motion will cause scratches that will show up badly. When you use straight to and fro motions, if there are any scratches they will not show so much. After you have sponged over the whole car, gently hose it all over to remove any dirt or grit that may remain.

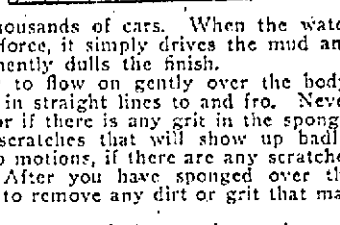

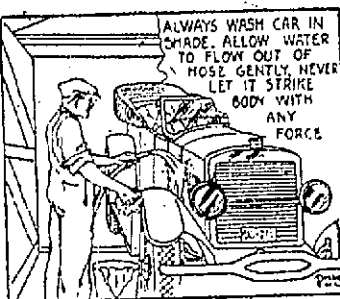

A word about sponges. Use TWO of them and get them as large as possible. Use one for the body exclusively and the other use only for the wheels and chassis. The sponge used on the body must be kept absolutely free from grease, oil, kerosene or gasoline. Any of these oils will dissolve or soften the finish and for this reason must be kept off sponges and chamois.

If the body has any mud on it, remove as soon as possible. There are two very good reasons why mud must not be left to dry on the varnish. First, because there is always a certain amount of time and ammonia in mud that will eat into varnish and spot it. Second, you are liable to scratch the finish unless you are very careful when removing it. The best way to remove mud is to play the hose on it gently and allow the mud to float off. Do not get impatient and try to rub the mud off with the sponge before it is softened.

After hosing and sponging, finish off by drying with a large chamois skin. It is a good idea to have a bucket of clean water beside you, into which you can dip the chamois and rinse it out each time you dry off. Use the chamois the same as you use the sponge, in long straight lines.

After washing all over, do not allow the water to dry on the body or it will leave the finish spotted and streaky. If, however, you do happen to be unfortunate enough to get the body spotted up a little from this cause, do not worry about it, as a few washings and exposure to the air will soon cause it to disappear.

Never use soap on the body. Use nothing but pure water. Sometimes it is necessary to use a little soap or kerosene in the water to remove the grease or oil from the wheels and chassis, but be very careful indeed not to use the sponge you use on the body to sponge the wheels.

BALLOON GUM-DIPPED CORDS

The Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord Tire has brought about one of the greatest advances in the comfort, safety and economy of motoring since the invention of the pneumatic tire. Low air pressure without sacrificing service or economy is the fundamental principle underlying its construction.
